The State of Qatar is located in the middle of the western coast of the Arabian Gulf, east of the Arabian Peninsula, between latitudes (27-24 and 10-26 degrees north) and longitudes (45-50 and 40-51 degrees east). The State of Qatar is a peninsula that extends northward and covers an area of 11,521 square kilometers.

Topography

The State of Qatar consists generally of flat rocky surfaces. However, some hills and sand dunes which reach an altitude of 40 meters above sea level can be found in the areas of Dukhan and Jebel Fuwairit in the western and the northern parts of the country.

The surface of Qatar includes a number of geographical features to the west coast of the Arabian Gulf. Mainly found in the north and central parts of the State, such phenomenon include coves and inlets together with depressions and surface rainwater-draining basins known as Al-Riyadh. The northern and central regions of the country are considered the most suitable areas for agricultural enterprises because of the fertile land and the natural and seasonal vegetation.

Climate

The State of Qatar has a desert climate consisting of a hot summer and relatively warm winter. Summer temperatures range between 25 and 46 degrees centigrade. Rainfall in the winter is minimal and rarely exceeds 75.2mm per year.

Ancestry

The people of Qatar are the descendents of ancient Arabian tribes which migrated from remote areas at different times starting from the 7th century until 19th century AD.

Population

The current population of Qatar is estimated at about 743,000 people with an expected annual increase of 3.5% and approximately 83% of them live in the capital city Doha and its suburb Al Rayan.

Religion & Language

Islam is the official religion of Qatar. The official language of the country is Arabic but English is also widely used.

National Anthem

Swearing by God who erected the sky
Swearing by God who spread the light
Qatar will always be free
Sublimed by the souls of the sincere
Proceed thou on the manners of the ascendants
And advance on the Prophet's guidance
In my heart,
Qatar is an epic of glory and dignity
Qatar is the land of the early men
Who protect us at time of distress,
Doves they can be in times of peace,
Warriors they are in times of sacrifice.

Meaning of the words of the Qatari National Anthem:

The new Anthem for the State of Qatar was adopted on December 7th 1996, upon the accession to the throne of H.H. the Emir Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani.

The first part of the Anthem starts with an oath and urges citizens of Qatar to remain committed to tread the path of their forefathers who were honorable, respectable, knowledgeable, religious and empowered by wisdom and vision. They are also urged to follow the guidance of the prophets and their preaching about righteousness, good deeds and beauty.

In the second and final part, the anthem affirms that the Qatari men of today are the defenders of its land and dignity, that they are the descendants of the ancestors who defended their country in the past.

The anthem closes by reaffirming that Qatar will remain free, dignified, glorious and noble.

Flag of the State of Qatar

The national flag of the State of Qatar is a vertically divided maroon and white flag with a 9 point serrated line where the two colors meet.

The Al Thani Family

The Al Thani family's presence in the Qatar peninsular dates from the eighteenth century when they arrived from the Gerbin oasis in the south of Nejd.

The family is named after Sheikh Thani bin Mohamed, the father of Sheikh Mohamed bin Al Thani who was first to rule the peninsula in the middle of the nineteenth century. The Al Thani family is a branch of the Arab tribe of Beni Tameem who descend from Mudhar bin Nizar.

Qatar throughout History

Ancient Times

The first signs of human habitation in the Qatar peninsula date from 4000 BC. Archaeological expeditions from Denmark (1965), Britain (1973) and France (1976) found rock carvings and groups of pottery that indicate a human presence at that time. Some historical texts claim that the first inhabitants of Qatar were the ancient Canaanites, a people well known for their trade and navigation skills.

The strategic location of Qatar in the Arabian Peninsula was one of the main reasons for its commercial prosperity. The seasonal migration of Arab tribes caused many fishing villages like Al Bida- Al Khor, Al Wakra and Al Zubarah to appear and to flourish by encouraging pearl trading.

According to historical documents, Qatar became renowned for the skill of its people in weaving and cloth making as well as for the quality of its horses and camels. Some historians considered it to be part of the region known as Bahrain, which stretched from Basra in Iraq to Oman. Qatar thrived in the Abbasid period and had excellent relations with the Caliphs in Baghdad. Abbasid artifacts have been found in Marroub Fort in western Qatar.

Qatar in Islamic History

In the 7th Century A.D., as the new religion of Islam spread out across the Arabian Gulf, Qatar came under the rule of the Islamic dynasties of the Umayyads based in Damascus and the Abbasids from Baghdad.

Qatar had a strong presence in Arab and Islamic arts and culture, and poets often referred to the country in their compositions.

Arab historians and observers also attribute special importance to the poet and knight of Qatar, Qatari bin Al Fuj'a.

Arab and Islamic history resources mention the sailing skills of the Qatari people and their role in equipping the first navy for the Islamic Army, under the command of Abi Alaa Al Hadrami. The Qataris were also renowned spear-makers.

The Arab geographer, Yaqout Al Hamawi, in his work "Mojam Al Buldan" mentions the flair Qataris had for tailoring garments and dresses. Clothing made in Qatar was very popular and it has been mentioned that the prophet Mohammed (Peace Be Upon Him) and Aisha, (wife of Mohammed and known as 'Mother of Faithful Believers'), both dressed in Qatari garments.

During the Abbasid era, in the 8th Century Hijri (14th Century A.D.), Qatar witnessed a period of economic prosperity and it was able to provide the Caliphs (or Khalifah) in Baghdad with considerable wealth. This is mentioned in documents originating from Marroub Fort, which itself displays a typical Abbasid architectural style.

In the 10th Century Hijri (16th Century A.D.), the Qataris and Turkish entered into alliance to successfully expel the Portuguese. For four centuries Qatar, like other areas in the Gulf, was under Ottoman influence. This remained the case until 1871. However, Ottoman sovereignty in the area was largely symbolic and the real power remained in the hands of the chiefs and princes of local Arab tribes.

In 1893 a famous battle took place at Al Wajbah Fort, in which the Qatari people, led by the then ruler Sheikh Qassim bin Mohammed Al Thani, defeated the Ottoman force.

Qatar in the 20th Century

Until the early 20th Century, Qatar maintained relations with the Islamic Khalifah state and acknowledged its nominal sovereignty over it, despite the fact that the Ottoman influence in the Gulf and Arabian Peninsula was on the wane. In 1867 the seeds of independence were sown after Britain signed a treaty with Qatar, under the leadership of Sheikh Mohammed Bin Thani, which no longer regarded the territory as a dependency of neighboring Bahrain.

Britain subsequently signed another treaty with Qatar in 1916, which was attested on 23rd March 1918 after Sheikh Abdullah Bin Jassim Al Thani signed the translated version. Under the treaty, Britain controlled Qatar's external affairs in return for guaranteeing its protection.

When competition for oil concessions in the region intensified, Britain made more specific promises of protection. In 1935 the previous treaty was amended and 'suspended provisions' in the 1916 treaty pertaining to British political representation in Qatar were revoked. A post office, airport and other installations were established.

Oil exploration took place over a 14 year period from 1935 – 1949. Although oil was first discovered in Dukhan in 1939, further exploration was halted for 4 years (1942 – 1946) due to the outbreak of World War II. Oil was finally exported in 1949, when the first tanker set sail with Qatari oil destined for international markets in December that year.

Before the discovery of oil the people of Qatar were subjected to a decade of harsh economic conditions (1939 – 1949). In addition to the adverse effects of World War II, Qatar also suffered from a decline in the diving and pearl markets. Food and basic commodities were both expensive and scarce.

Since the 1960's Qatar has contributed to the international arena, becoming a member of both UNESCO & WHO and, in 1971, Qatar became an independent state.

Following the British decision to withdraw from the region in 1968, a decree was issued in 1969 (Law No. 11) concerning the establishment of a foreign affairs department. This subsequently became the core of the current Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
